WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 12.

THE DEVIL'S DAUGHTERS—Our special correspondent with General Howard writes that the wounded were fearfully tortured and mutilated by the Nez Percés squaws on the Big Hole battle ground. The soldiers had taken the Indian village, but being overpowered by numbers they were obliged to fall back and fight their way to a position on the side of the mountain which the enemy had already taken possession of. They had a desperate encounter but carried the point, and immediately dug trenches with their groined bayonets. The atrocities perpetrated upon the helpless boys in line by these shrewd devils can hardly be realized by any one unaccustomed to tales of savage barbarity. They heated their canoes with red hot and then thrust them into the bodies of the wounded, mangled them in every conceivable manner, and slowly tortured them to death in ways known only to devils. Early in the action a bugler, a mere boy, was wounded in both legs. One of his comrades carried him off the field and he would have died there a few minutes and then they would have taken him to a place of safety. The Indians got possession of the creek and bottom land, the squaws discovered, mutilated him and burned both his eyes out. The boy's sufferings can be imagined and death was certainly a welcome relief to him. —Salt Lake Tribune.
